I want to create a text file but i am using wrong syntax.I want to open a file with this below in a script. i am using two different.rb files. OS:RedHat Linux 6.4 I am using Ruby 1.8.7 Script in Application/ s3cmd put file1/conf/file.txt "" Script in ROOT/ s3cmd put file1/conf/file.txt "" Error /usr/bin/s3cmd: No such file or directory root@my-laptop:~/file1# s3cmd put file1/conf/file.txt "" s3cmd: No such file or directory A: This works for me: #!/usr/bin/env ruby puts "" If you get errors like's3cmd: No such file or directory' that means you're probably having trouble with the PATH or permissions. Make sure that the script is executable. chmod +x script.rb Then to run it from the shell just./script.rb It's back to the dark side for A-list actors and models who have a vested interest in making sure there is no Manchester United comeback.
